NIM+

Welcome to the inaugural volume of Nim+

Nim+ is a free community-made zine, collecting homebrew content in themed volumes that are easy to use at the table. Entries for Nim+ are entirely sourced from community collaborators. If you wish to participate in future volumes, you can find a link to the official Nimble Discord server on page 20.

Please keep in mind that the content in this zine was made entirely by volunteers. While the entries have been edited for consistency and balance, they may not be perfectly in line with Nimble proper. Use your best judgement when introducing Nim+ to your table, and feel free to tweak it to your liking. The aim is to create more fun choices for everyone.

The theme for Volume I is Character Creation. In this volume you will find new exotic ancestries, a variety of interesting backgrounds, options for alternative rules and even new systems to try out.

ANCESTRIES

Additional exotic ancestries of every variety

Use these ancestries the same way you would exotic ancestries from the core rules. Ask your Game Master how they fit into your game. Remember, flavor is free – features can be switched around if it makes sense for your table.

The Rotten Pixie

Mousefolk (Small)

Mousefolk pride themselves on being brave and steadfast against insurmountable odds. Although their fearlessness does get them into trouble more often than not, they will never flee from a fight.

Dauntless.

While Bloodied, you gain the following benefits: Immunity to Frightened. Gain advantage on an attack, 1/encounter.

The Rotten Pixie

Foxfolk (Medium)

As sly as they say and twice as devious. Trust is hard to come by for Foxfolk, and perhaps that is why they learn quickly how to make a good impression.

Sly as a... Well, you know.

When you Defend, you may add your Influence to your Armor, 1/encounter. +1 Influence.

The Rotten Pixie

Otterfolk (Small or Medium)

Playful, friendly, and always up for some well-intended mischief, Otterfolk are at home both in water and on land. Although they can be fierce warriors, they typically prefer using their environment to their advantage.

At home in water.

You have a swim Speed as long as you are wearing armor no heavier than leather. When Field Resting in water, you regain additional HP equal to your level.

The Rotten Pixie

Badgerfolk (Medium)

Their gentle demeanor and fondness for a good cup of tea at lunchtime betrays their innate strength. Badgerfolk know full well how to use their size to their opponent's dismay.

Rotund.

When you attack in melee, add LVL to the damage of that attack, 1/encounter. +3 inventory slots.

SanityWithIn

Tidewalker (Medium)

The tides are in your blood, the currents in your veins. You move with the rhythm of the sea – fluid and unbound. Yet the land holds no such grace for you. Though you might walk among those of the shore, the sea always beckons.

Tidal Grace.

You have a swim Speed, and you can breathe underwater. Advantage on DEX saves in water, but disadvantage on dry land. You can talk to fish if your INT is not negative.

SanityWithIn

Snakefolk (Small or Medium)

Cold-Blooded? Deadly poison? Hissing through a forked tongue? Snakefolk face many ugly stereotypes, but perhaps some are true. Show your detractors exactly what you think of their comments.

Toxic Spit.

You have advantage against poison saves. (1/encounter) Free Reaction: Spit an adjacent foe in the face. Deals 1d4 poison damage and inflicts Blinded until the start of your next turn.

SanityWithIn

Catfolk (Small or Medium)

Agile, graceful, and able to fall impossible distances without injury. Some say they have multiple lives, or perhaps some secret magic. Their main concern is typically finding the next sunbeam.

Feline Grace.

+1 Stealth and Finesse. Ignore damage from falling or forced movement, 1/Safe Rest.

Kazok the Goblin

Deepwalker (Medium)

A strange and unknowable people from deep beneath the waves, Deepwalkers are as varied from one another as they are from landwalkers. Some say they commune with the ancient denizens of the deep.

The Call.

You have a swim Speed, and you can breathe underwater. Resistant to cold. Vulnerable to fire. You know Primordial if your INT is not negative.

Kazok the Goblin, Theleftmouseknop, Raford

Scalekin (Medium)

Armed with sharp teeth, claws, and a lethal natural poison, these lizards are forces to be reckoned with. The hostile and arid desert reaches from which they hail have made them formidable adversaries.

Arid Glands.

(1/Safe Rest) Action: Imbue a weapon with poison, which adds 1d4 poison damage until the start of your next turn. Increment die size one step when you get a Key Stat Increase. +1 Naturecraft.

Kazok the Goblin

Slugling (Small)

Slow and deliberate, but usually one 'step' ahead. Sluglings are never in a hurry to be anywhere, but can be valuable allies on any journey – if you have the patience.

Snail's Pace.

Your base Speed is 1, and you have a climb Speed. Your first move action each turn is free. Your level is always 1 higher than the rest of the party (up to 20). Vulnerable to salt. +1 armor.

Kazok the Goblin

Nasfara (Medium)

Nomadic felines found in deserts, savannas, and jungles. Natural predators with deadly claws, innate agility, and fearsome swiftness. Only foolish prey would not fear to get on their bad side.

Predator.

+1 Speed and Initiative. Your unarmed strikes deal slashing damage, and may use DEX instead of STR.

SanityWithIn

Dhampir (Any)

Dhampir. Thin blood. Daywalker. Whatever they call you, you are neither a true vampire nor a living being. Trapped between life and death, you crave the blood as much as you loathe it.

Unnatural Urges.

You have a climb Speed. Magical healing only heals you for half the amount. When you damage a Bloodied creature in melee, you may heal for that amount, 1/Safe Rest.

Santuric

Jotunn (Large)

Stout as stone and treacherous as a summer glacier. Jotunn hail from distant lands where they while away the winter dark with many competitions of prowess and cunning.

Challenger.

+1 Might or Finesse. You ignore cold weather, and breathe comfortably in extreme altitudes. Advantage on skill checks when you engage in duels of wit, speed, strength or drinking.

Kazok the Goblin

Lupid (Medium)

A canine people, often living in solitary packs. Lupid are known to be excellent trackers and hunters, often relying on their superior sense of smell. They survive where others would fall.

Tracker.

+1 Examination. Advantage on any skill check related to using your sense of smell. Strong urge to howl at the moon.

SanityWithIn

Werecursed (Any)

A curse? Perhaps a blessing? Either way, you must find a way to live with your innate ferocity. When instinct takes hold, you shift to your other self – maybe even your true self.

The Curse.

At night you transform into a feral beast. While transformed you can speak with animals, become vulnerable to silver, and gain a Vicious bite attack that deals 1d6+DEX piercing damage.

SanityWithIn

Pixie (Tiny)

The smallest of the fair folk. Whimsical and unpredictable. Pixies are usually considered harmless, but can be surprisingly competent in combat – especially if mistaken for some kind of insect.

Tricksy.

-2 Speed. Advantage on Stealth. You have a fly Speed as long as you are wearing armor no heavier than leather. Resistant to magic. Vulnerable to metal.

Kazok the Goblin, SanityWithIn, Santuric
Elemental Scion (Medium)

An embodiment of one of the primordial energies. Through summoning or interplanar travel, you now find yourself in the mortal world, deprived of the currents in which you once swam.

Elemental Embodiment.

Choose an element to embody. You know cantrips from the associated spell school. (1/Safe Rest) Reaction: You become immune to your chosen element until the start of your next turn.

Chthonic Duck
Lichmarked (Any)

You were marked by a lich as their living phylactery and hidden away. Their cursed essence eats away at your body and sanity. While you live, the lich cannot die. Will you embrace this gift, or seek to rid yourself of it?

Living Phylactery.

You know Necrotic cantrips. While you are Dying, attacking and casting does not risk causing Wounds. You feel a vague pull in the direction of the lich when you sleep.

Santuric
Unbound Imp (Small)

Imps are typically bound as protectors of magic artifacts and ancient tomes. Somehow, you managed to escape the bindings of whichever smelly wizard invoked you. Now, the entire world lays at your tiny feet.

Pocket Dimension.

You have access to a personal pocket dimension when you Safe Rest or Field Rest. It takes the shape of a small room, that you can decorate and store items in.

BACKGROUNDS

Additional backgrounds for all types of heroes

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Common. You're a nobody. People seem to overlook you both in and out of combat, at least until they see you attack something or perform some notable act.

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Kind of a Big Deal. You're obviously much more important than the average person. Each of your allies can Interpose for you for free, 1/round. You're sometimes able to skip queues.

Kazok the Goblin, SanityWithIn

Overconfident. Come on then, you can take it! You never believed what your ancestor said about overconfidence anyways. +2 max HP per level. +2 armor. Attacks never miss you.

The Rotten Pixie

Plucky Wannabe Hero. You got moxie kid. People like the cut of your jib. You're just looking for that one opportunity to truly make waves. While you are Dying, you have advantage on your STR saves, and taking damage causes 1 fewer wounds.

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Field Chef. You know just the trick to making a hearty meal while on the road. When you Field Rest you may cook a meal that restores 1 Hit Die for you and your allies, 1/day.

The Rotten Pixie

Iron Gut. You should probably see a doctor, because what you have doesn't seem natural – or maybe you're just a kobold. You can eat pretty much anything, and you have advantage against poison saves. When you eat a full meal during a Safe Rest or Field Rest, you gain KEY temporary HP.

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Fearful. +1 Speed and Initiative. You are scared of creatures larger than you (DC 10 WIL save, Frightened on fail).

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Insecure. You may choose to automatically fail a skill check with catastrophic results. When you do so, you gain Inspiration (see pg. 54 of the Core Rules). 1/Safe Rest.

The Rotten Pixie

Exile. For one reason or another you were exiled from your former home. You have knowledge of a network of people who are either also in exile, or sympathetic to your plight. They may be convinced to help you.

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Wild Child. You were raised by wild beasts and know how to communicate with animals using simple noises and body language. You are unfamiliar with civilization and have disadvantage on Influence checks in civilized society.

The Rotten Pixie

Out For Vengeance. Someone wronged you and vengeance demands that they must pay! Work out who your nemesis is – and what they did – with your Game Master. You have advantage on checks related to tracking them. While in combat with your nemesis, you roll with advantage against them, and with disadvantage against everyone else.

Kazok the Goblin

Treasure Hunter. This is not your first time adventuring. Some might call you lucky, you would call it experience. You know the approximate value of artifacts and treasure. You may gain advantage on a skill check while raiding a tomb or exploring a dungeon, 1/Save Rest.

Kazok the Goblin

Bounty Hunter. You're polite, efficient, and you have a plan to kill everyone you meet. Getting your hands dirty is just part of the job. You usually know where to find bounties in new cities. You may Assess for free in combat, 1/encounter.

Kazok the Goblin

Scribe. You've spent a lot of time writing and transcribing various tomes and scrolls. You know two additional languages, but only in writing. You always succeed when using spell scrolls.

Kazok the Goblin

Forgemate. Your calloused, scorched hands mark you as a friend in smithing circles. Smiths are easier to haggle with, and may even let you use their forge. +1 Might and Examination.

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Hunted. You're on the run, always wary. One day they will find you. You cannot be surprised, and you always roll a minimum of 10 on Initiative.

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Big Fella. Increase your size category by one step (up to Large). +3 inventory slots. Why do you always have to carry everything?

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Determined. You're known to be stubborn and headstrong. When you would fail a save or skill check, you may reroll it. If you fail the reroll, the consequences are spectacularly bad. 1/Safe Rest.

Santuric

Arena Fighter. You have fought your fair share of duels, and you know how to get the audience riled up. While fighting in an arena setting, you have advantage on skill checks related to performing for the audience or intimidating your opponent.

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Street-smart. You might not have a lot of book smarts, but you still know how to get stuff done. You cannot read or write. Gain advantage on a skill check, 1/Safe Rest.

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Thuggish. You are brutish and mean. Why solve problem with word, when fist do trick? When you hit a creature in melee, they become Frightened until the start of your next turn, 1/Safe Rest.

The Rotten Pixie

Disgraced Politician. Maybe you were corrupt, or looking to fix a broken system. Either way you lost the last election by a WIDE margin. You still have both friends and foes in most cities, depending on your former affiliation. +1 Influence and Lore.

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Peg Leg. Thump! Thump! Thump! You lost one of your legs in combat. Or was it an accident? Seafaring folk find it respectable, at least. -1 Speed. +2 Armor.

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Daydreamer. You tend to zone out, lost in thought, dreaming. Disadvantage on Perception. (1/Safe Rest) Free Reaction: Become immune to psychic damage until the start of your next turn.

SanityWithIn, Santuric

Overprepared. You usually have just the thing you need. You may withdraw a common tool or item from your pack when it is needed, even if you never mentioned it before, 1/Safe Rest. -3 inventory slots.

Plot-Relevant Commoner

Long Lost. You've spent a long time lost in the wilds, which has given you an innate sense of direction. You always know the approximate direction of north and the way you came from in dungeons. If only you could find your way home...

"In my line o'business you meet lotsa strange people. Most of them are alright, despite 'da fangs an' such. I took the liberty to write notes about sum' o'da more interesting folks I encountered."

- Jasper Mance

FLEXIBLE SKILL ALLOCATION

A flexible system for skill point allocation

Flexible Skill Allocation is a variant rule that aims to increase skill variety. Rather than stats giving a flat bonus to all associated skills, you now gain a variable amount of skill points based on your stats. This allows each hero to specialize, if they so wish, without having to wait for skill point re-allocation when they level up.

How to use:

Stats no longer grant flat bonuses to the associated skills. Instead, you gain skill points based on your stats to distribute among those skills. At level 1, you also gain 4 flexible skill points to assign to any skill as normal, and skills are capped to -4 and +6. Negative stats grant negative skill points, which must be subtracted from the associated skills.

- Each point in STR grants 1 skill point in Might
- Each point in DEX grants 2 skill points.
Distribute these between Finesse and Stealth
- Each point in INT grants 3 skill points.
Distribute these between Arcana, Examination and Lore
- Each point in WIS grants 4 skill points.
Distribute these between Influence, Insight, Naturecraft and Perception.

When your base stats increase, you gain the associated number of skill points listed above instead of a flat increase to the associated skills.

RANDOM STAT SCORES

Generate your stats with a simple roll of the dice

Your starting stats are determined by a roll of the dice instead of picking an array.

Roll 2d6, then see the table on the right for your result. Repeat 3 times, then assign to your stats in any order.

Roll	Result
2	-2
3	-1
4-5	0
6-8	+1
9-11	+2
12	+3

DIFFICULTY MODES

Difficulty modes for stat rolling during character creation

Difficulty modes selected during character creation. Your choice will be reflected in the capability of your character, with options for both higher and lower levels of power.

Easy

Stats. Roll 1d4 with advantage. Rolls can explode. See table A for your result. Repeat 3 times, and assign to your stats in any order.

HP. Roll 3 Hit Dice with advantage, then add your STR to the result. Rolls can explode.

A

Roll	Result
1	-1
2	0
3	+1
5-6	+2
7-9	+3
10+	+4

Moderate

Stats. Roll 1d4. Rolls can explode. See table A for your result. Repeat 3 times, and assign to your stats in any order.

HP. Roll 1 Hit Die with advantage, then add the max result of 1 Hit Die. Rolls can explode.

B

Roll	Result
1	-1
2	0
3	+1
4	+2

Hard

Stats. Roll 1d4. See table B for your result. Repeat 3 times, and assign to each stat in order.

HP. Roll 2 Hit Dice. Rolls can explode.

NEW SYSTEMS

New systems to use during the character creation process. Use these in addition to the core Nimble system to add more depth and variety to your heroes. Ask your Game Master if these systems are right for your table.

Chris Lewis (HappyBunny)

SENSE OF BEING

Create a quick pitch about your character to prompt your roleplaying

Sense of Being is a system for creating a description about your hero, by using a series of keywords to construct a sentence. The aim of this system is to create an 'elevator pitch' for your character, which may help inspire roleplay and ease the introduction of your hero to new players. To create your Sense of Being, start by picking keywords in each of the following categories.

<Attitude> (Your character's outlook and temperament)

Examples: Aggressive, Careful, Flashy, Patient, Quick, Sneaky

<Role> (Your character's role in your society or group)

Examples: Smith, Priest, Soldier, Merchant, Zealot

<Group> (Your character's main affiliation)

Examples: Village of Merivale, Guards of Farhope, Druids of the Elderwild, Goblins of the Growling Marshes

<Relationship> (Your character's most meaningful relationship)

Examples: Smitten with Elzbeth, Respected by the Guild, Friend to Ugly Bob, Divorced by Scribe Alex

Use your selected keywords to construct your Sense of Being as a sentence. For example:

"I am Stabs the Cheat, the <Energetic> <Bounty Hunter>, who was hired by the <Goblins of the Growling Marshes>, because of my <Friendship to Ugly Bob>.

Optionally, you may use this system to reward relevant roleplay. When a skill check relates to one of the keywords in your Sense of Being, you roll with advantage.

ANCESTRY VARIANTS

Sub-ancestry bonuses to further customize your character

Ancestry Variants are sub-ancestry bonuses for all of the core ancestries (plus some exotic favorites), which allows for further customization of your character and prompts for roleplay. Note that these bonuses make your hero stronger than normal.

Human Adaptations

In addition to your Tenacious trait, you also gain a Minor Boon (see pg. 23 of the GM's Guide).

Dwarven Hearths

In addition to your Stout trait, choose one of the following:

Mountainborn. Harsh mountainous environments have made you tougher than most.

Tough. +1 Armor. Never tires when climbing mountains.

Caveborn. Deep below the earth, you have adapted.

Echo Sense. Being Blinded does not give you disadvantage, as long as you can hear.

Towerborn. A mountain built by thine own hands.

Liaison. +1 Influence. You have connections to various guilds and merchants, and always seem to get favorable deals.

Elven Clades

In addition to your Lithe trait, choose one of the following:

High Elf. Those most connected to the arcane and their ancient forebearers.

Arcane. Learn any 1 Utility Spell.

Wood Elf. You carry the magic of primeval forests with you.

Woodland Speech. +1 Naturecraft. You can communicate simple ideas to animals.

Deep Elf. Dwells in the dark, adapted in body and soul.

Silent Step. +1 Stealth. Advantage on Stealth in darkness.

Halfling Traditions

In addition to your Elusive trait, choose one of the following:

Hearthfolk. The comfortable life of warmth, a full belly, and good company.

Gourmand. After eating a hearty meal you regain 1 Hit Die, 1/Safe Rest.

Wanderfolk. Been there, seen that. The road goes ever on and on.

Curious. You may Assess for free in combat, 1/encounter. +1 Insight.

Companyfolk. Good friends and common purpose. What is life without it?

Unionized. You may Help for free in combat, 1/encounter. +1 Lore.

Gnomish Branches

In addition to your Optimistic trait, choose one of the following:

Tree Cadet. Reclusive and cheeky, with an affinity for illusion.

Illusionist. When you Defend, you may add your INT to your Armor, 1/encounter.

Rock Cadet. Steady and stubborn, with an affinity for minerals.

Prospector. You have a sixth sense for nearby hidden doors and tunnels.

Metal Cadet. Naturally resourceful, with an affinity for tools.

Tinkerer. During a Safe Rest, you may create a Clockwork Cantrip. Pay 50 gold and choose a cantrip from any school. DC 10 Arcana to use, breaks on a fail.

Dragonborn Horns

In addition to your Draconic Heritage trait, choose one of the following:

Descendant of Tyranny. Cruelly twisted horns mark your domineering ancestry.

Dreadful Roar. (1/Safe Rest) Action: Until the start of your next turn, you Frighten all minions that can hear you.

Descendant of Majesty. Proudly curved horns mark your gallant ancestry.

Challenge Honor. (1/Safe Rest) Action: Taunt a creature you can see until the start of your next turn. You are also Taunted by that creature.

Descendant of Wisdom. Inexplicably branching horns mark your sage ancestry.

Harmonize. (1/Safe Rest) Action: All minions that can see you stop fighting until the end of your next turn, or until one of them is attacked.

Fiendkin Curses

In addition to your Flameborn trait, choose one of the following:

Curse of Loneliness. Thy connections be broken, eternally yearning.

Tongue of Silver. (1/Safe Rest) Action: Flatter an intelligent creature. It becomes Charmed by you for 1 minute.

Curse of the Wastes. Thy body be battered, eternally strained.

Weathered. (1/Safe Rest) Action: Gain immunity to fire and ice until the start of your next turn.

Curse of Impalement. Thy skin be broken, eternally pained.

Barbed Skin. Reaction (when attacked): Until the start of your next turn, you deal 1d4 piercing damage to enemies when they attack you in melee. Does not miss or crit.

Goblinoid Tribes

In addition to your Skedaddle trait, choose one of the following:

Bog Spawn. The fungi, the moss, the toads, and the muck. Home.

Swamp Strider. Advantage against poison saves. Ignore difficult terrain in the form of shallow water or mud.

Urban Spawn. The people, the stench, the smog, and the sprawl. Home.

Rooftop Reflexes. +1 Perception. Half damage from falling or forced movement.

Cave Spawn. The dark, the quiet, the critters, and the hidden. Home.

Stone Cloak. +1 Stealth. You always succeed when hiding amongst rocks.

Kobold Clans

In addition to your Wily trait, choose one of the following:

Sorts-by-Taste. I sort it by taste! I do it how I please!

Slurper. Potion effects last twice as long for you.

Sorts-by-Color. I sort it by color! You do not deserve the duty!

Spotter. +1 Perception. Advantage when looking for hidden traps.

Sorts-by-Smell. I sort by smell, I guess. I actually hate it here.

Sniffer. +1 Naturecraft. Advantage when tracking a creature by scent.

Orcish Kin

In addition to your Relentless trait, choose one of the following:

Stormkin. Your blood roils with the coastal storms, the jungle monsoons, and the powerful lightning.

Stormstep. (1/encounter) Reaction (when hit from range): Move up to your Speed towards the attacker.

Sunkin. Your blood boils with the desert heat, the scorched plains, and the radiant mountains.

Powerful Build. Traveling does not exhaust you. You have an additional +STR inventory slots.

Forestkin. Your blood toils with the grasping trees, the skyward canopies, and the lurking undergrowth.

Greenhand Toss. Treat a weapon as if it has Thrown 4, 1/encounter.

Oozeling/Construct Permutations

In addition to your Odd Constitution trait, choose one of the following:

Acidic Essence. Your body is acidic. You never really got along with people's fingers.

Etch. You may dissolve small objects by inserting them into your body.

Combustible Essence. Your body is volatile. You're usually not allowed near curtains.

Ignite. You may ignite flammable objects by touch.

Impervious Essence. Your body is durable. Work-hardened, probably from clumsiness.

Harden. Reduce damage from falling or forced movement by LVL.

THE DJINN'S GAMBIT

Win fabulous prizes at Zon's game of luck

1	2	3	4		5	6	7	8+
A bar of soap	5 Silver Coins	A shiny object	1 Gold Coin		5 Gold Coins	X	Grand Prize!	X

The Djinn's Gambit is a mini-game played during character creation, where you push your luck for grand prizes.

How to play:

Roll 1d4 and move your marker to the resulting space. You may choose to stop here and claim the prize, or roll again to go further. You may roll as many times as you wish, but if you ever land on 6 or 8+, you lose.

On a lucky 7, you win the Grand Prize! Roll 1d10 to see what you won from the list of Starting Gifts (pg. 19).

At the Game Master's discretion, participating may require a small fee (1 Gold), and may carry a risk of penalty (such as giving up one of your starting items, or owing a favor to Zon the Magnificent).

Artist: Chthonic Duck

STARTING GIFTS

Fun starting items for the heroically inclined

Starting Gifts are minor items that are helpful in the early days of a hero's journey. At the discretion of the Game Master, players may either pick from the list, or roll 1d10 for a random gift. Alternatively, Starting Gifts may be won in the Djinn's Gambit (pg. 18).

1 - A simple pendant

Brings fond memories, but is otherwise useless. At least you think so.

2 - "Divine" Blessing

Consume to remove 1 Wound. Tastes like soap.

3 - Emergency Power Crystal

Break to gain 1 extra action. Does not cost an action to do.

4 - Authentic Gold Coins

A pouch of 10 chocolate coins. They look convincingly real.

5 - Disposable Utility Scroll

Cast any Utility Spell. Consumed on use.

6 - Lucky Coin

Flip to gain advantage on a skill check. Lost when used.

7 - Fragile Skeleton Key

Able to open any lock. Breaks after one use.

8 - Auto-Babbler

Translates any spoken language to common. Charge only lasts 1 minute.

9 - InstaMana

Consume to gain KEY mana. May need to add water.

10 - Goblin Plushie

Very soft and cuddly. Guaranteed* to not steal your socks.
