

DROW

Eruthless, subterranean society built on domination, control, and fear. Structured around a rigid cast system with the high priestesses of Aranya, the Spider Queen, wielding both religious and political power. Noble Houses form a closed circle of rulers whose absolute authority extends over their lineage and private domains, often defended by elite, fanatically loyal warriors.

Every individual is born into a caste, commoner, noble, or priest, and remains there unless a violent upheaval occurs. Ambition, betrayal, and poisonous intrigue are not only common, but expected. In a society fueled by fear and religious fanaticism: only the most ruthless and cunning survive.

The Drow are methodical, cruel, and calculating predators. They ambush and use webbing and poison to divide and confuse their foes. Swift death is a mercy not often afforded to their enemies—a living enemy can be ransomed, ritually sacrificed, or become useful become tools of blackmail.

“A captured foe has many more uses than a corpse.” — Drazna, Drow High Priestess

DROW ABILITIES

Ambush Combatants. Drow always go first in combat (unless surprised).

Cruel Poisoners. On Damage, Poisoned (healing ends). Roll d20s instead VS Hampered creatures.

Hampered. Anything that negatively impacts movement or actions (e.g., Poisoned, Restrained, Slowed, Prone, Frightened...).

DROW SCOUT LVL 3

8 26

Poisoned Crossbow. (Range 8) 2d8.

Low-ranking warriors, who rely on stealth and speed. Their role is to soften targets for others with poisoned bolts.

Stay near melee heroes to be easily dispatched.

Shoot from max Range. Spread out Poison then focus fire.

DROW WARRIOR LVL 6

8 34

- Blade Flurry. (2x) 2d8 OR:
- Poisoned Crossbow. (Range 8) 2d8.

These serve as artisans, spies, or soldiers, hoping to gain favor or simply survive another cycle in the merciless hierarchy of Drow society and in the shadow of the noble houses.

Use the Poisoned Crossbow for less damage output

Use Blade Flurry VS Hampered targets for tremendous damage output!

DROW ARACHNOMANCER LVL 7

50

Web Wall. (Single Use) Fill up to 8 empty spaces in a straight line with tangled webs. Enemies or objects who touch this area are Restrained (escape DC 13). Lasts until you die.

- Fanglash. 2d8. On Damage: Poison 2 (rolls are made with disadvantage 2; healing ends). OR:
- Pyrotoxin. (Range 8) 2d20 (to a Poisoned creature; ending the condition) this damage cannot be Interposed or Defended.

Trained in elite Drow academies, he controls battles with sticky webs and venomous spells. His magic spreads poison or ignites it into searing energy.

Move out into the open and use Fanglash on already Poisoned Heroes. Allow Web Wall to disappear when bloodied, crit or at will.

Use Web Wall to split up the party of heroes, and target low HP heroes with Pyrotoxin at maximum Range.

GM note! If a creature is Restrained in place, an ally may not be able to Interpose for them since they can't be pushed out of the way! You can allow it though if you want an encounter to be easier.

DROW ELITE WARRIOR LVL 9

8 70

Deft Parry. The first attack against you each round misses.

Blade Flurry. (2x) 2d8.

Bodyguard for Drow nobility, they act as enforcers and shock troopers. In combat, he fights with precision and cruelty.

Act first and target non-Hampered heroes

Act last and prioritize Hampered heroes.

No TPK! Drow LOVE to take captive rather than kill outright. If they would deal a final Wound, they instead knock a hero out and take them captive.

DRIDER LVL 11, LARGE

M 90

Horrible Sight. Upon first sight of this creature, enemies become Frightened on a failed DC 15 WIL save.

Charge. 3d20. On hit: Prone.

Terrifying abominations—half Drow, half monstrous spider. Only the most dedicated Drow are allowed the privilege of becoming like their queen.

Knock creatures Prone before attacking with Ranged Drow.

Follow up Drider attacks with Warrior's Blade Flurry.

DROW PRIESTESS LVL 16, LARGE

90

Broodmother. Summon 5 Spiderling minions within Reach 8 (size: d8).

Deathcry: Horrible Emergence. Transform into a Drider.

Fearful and fanatical servants of the Spider Queen, they wield cruel authority over the Drow. In any negotiation, she is the highest authority, and her word is absolute.

Avoid movement, move minions in groups, toward heroes that have AoE abilities that can easily take them out. Minions act next round.

Minions act immediately, spread them out so that multiple are not easily taken out with single attacks.
