ARTIST: KEREM BEYIT

Level 8 Solo Ice Dragon

ISKARYTH THE FROSTBORNE

190 H STR+, WIL+

Rimeblade Aura. Others suffer 2 damage for each space they move while within Reach 2.

Shielded by Ice: Vulnerable to Fire and Bludgeoning damage. Iskaryth is enraged and gains advantage on her next attack.

ACTIONS: After each hero's turn, Fly 12 OR choose one:

- Wall of Ice. (1 use, Reach 10) Summon a wall of ice 5 spaces in a line.
- Bite. Move 4. (Reach 2) 2d6+10. On damage: Can't use reactions until Healed or dealt Fire damage.
- Shattering Claws: Move 4. (Reach 2) 3d6. Any die can be chosen as the primary die against a Hampered target. On crit: deal +20 damage instead of rolling additional dice.
- Blizzard. (1 use, AoE, Reach 6) 3d6+20 damage. DC 14 STR save or frozen in place (Restrained). Save to escape, or any Fire/Bludgeoning damage.

BLOODIED: "Brutal Storm" Iskaryth summons a mighty blizzard, others are Blind beyond Reach/Range 6 and take 1d6 damage at the end of their turns.

LAST STAND: Iskaryth is dying! 80 more damage and she dies. Brutal Storm intensifies, dealing 2d6 damage instead.

Iskaryth the Frostborne is a name whispered in reverence and fear among the highland tribes and northern scholars alike. She slumbers beneath the ruins of Skeldrim Hollow, a shattered temple buried in ice, guarded by frost-wights who chant in dead tongues. But recent tremors in the permafrost and the unnatural stilling of the wind have led some to believe she stirs again—awakened not by hunger, but by prophecy. They say when Iskaryth flies once more, she will not return alone.

ICE DRAGON ENCOUNTER & TACTICS

- Icewall. She will fly to ranged heroes and wall off the melee ones (who will have to move much further through her Rimeblade Aura). Allow the heroes creative ways to overcome the Icewall: smash it, melt it, climb it, fly over it... Play into it when the wall is overcome! "YOU AGAIN?!"
- Frostbite & Claw. If no target has Frostbite, she will use Bite to apply it, and follow that up with Shattering Claws to take advantage of the Hampered effect.
- Isolate. She is VERY good at dividing up the heroes and limiting teamwork (moving, interposing, defending, etc.)—this should feel more tactical than frustrating. Ease up if you can sense your players becoming too frustrated.
- Blizzard: get them in close. Iskareth wants to get her enemies in close to her to unleash her Blizzard, wait until as many heroes as possible are within Reach to use it. It will be a big turning point in the encounter, anyone who fails the STR save will be a great target for Shattering Claws (since they are Hampered AND she gets to attack them with advantage).

- Give Reprieve. If the encounter is too hard, Iskaryth can say "YOU ALL WILL BE BITTEN BY FROST" and spend a few turns Flying then Biting each hero "WHO'S NEXT?", greatly reducing her damage output (and allowing the heroes to RP and try to deceive her or heal through the Frostbite and catch up). Return to the normal tactics when you feel the heroes have regained the upper hand.
- Make Them Weep! If the encounter is too easy, allow her to regain Blizzard once when Bloodied or Dying, increase the DC to 16 (or they must deal that much Bludgeoning or Fire damage). Instead of a straight line, you can use wall of ice to completely encircle a hero!
